Clinton Raises Record Cash

Presidential hopeful raises $26M in first 3 months of '07

WASHINGTON | Shattering previous records, Democratic Sen. Hillary Rodham Clinton of New York collected $26 million for her presidential campaign during the first three months of the year and transferred an additional $10 million from her Senate fundraising account, aides said Sunday.

The campaign did not specify how much of the $36 million was available only for the primary election and how much could be used just in the general election, if she were the party's nominee.

Still, the total raised outdistanced past presidential election records and set a high bar by which to measure the fundraising abilities of her chief rivals.

Her closest rival in polls of Democratic voters — Sen. Barack Obama of Illinois — had yet to reveal his totals; former Sen. John Edwards, D-N.C., was expected to release his later Sunday. But New Mexico Gov. Bill Richardson's campaign said he raised $6 million in primary campaign money and had more than $5 million cash in hand at the end of the three-month period.

The rest of the Democratic field and the Republican presidential candidates planned to announce their first-quarter totals over the next few days. The fundraising deadline for the January through March period was Saturday, with financial reports due April 15. (AP)

FARES

He Was on the Zone System; She Wasn't

A taxi driver told police he was stiffed on an $8,200 cross-country fare by a passenger he drove from Beverly Hills, Calif., to North Carolina. The meter in Levon Mikayelyan's cab hit the staggering fare after a 2,600-mile journey that ended in Chapel Hill. Mikayelyan said he was paid only $800, Chapel Hill police spokeswoman Jane Cousins said Friday. "We do get reports of people who are not able to pay cab drivers, but certainly not with this amount," Cousins said. Leo Mika, a dispatcher for West Coast Yellow Cab, said Friday that the company has been paid another $2,000 toward the fare and plans to get the rest through small claims court. (AP)

BLASPHEMY

Dung, Urine and Now CHOCOLATE?

A planned exhibition in New York of a nude chocolate sculpture of Jesus was canceled Friday after outraged Catholics complained. Bill Donohue, head of the Catholic League, said it was "one of the worst assaults on Christian sensibilities ever." "My Sweet Lord," by artist Cosimo Cavallo, was shut down by the hotel housing the gallery. The 6-foot-tall sculpture was the victim of "strong-arming from people who haven't seen the show, seen what we're doing," said the gallery's Matt Semler. Previous clashes between art and Catholicism have occurred over Andres Serrano's "Piss Christ" and a Virgin Mary decorated with elephant dung. (AP)

TOTAL MISERY

Saddest Item Ever

There was a $1,000 reward, a toll-free tip line and a news conference — all for a lost little bike. The foot-high contraption belongs to Bello Nock, the clown star of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus. The bitty bike was taken from a Manhattan street Friday while he performed. "Can I please have my bike back?" he said a day after the disappearance, adding that he was "very upset." His trademark bike was built in Mexico City and has been in his family of circus performers for a dozen years. (AP)

He got his first working model at age 3; his parents said he played with a toy vacuum constantly as a toddler. (AP)

Katrina Fraud Reported Nationwide

Investigators facing thousands of cases from across the U.S.

An Illinois woman mourns her two young daughters, swept to their deaths in Hurricane Katrina's floodwaters. It's a tragic and terrifying story. It's also a lie.

More than 18 months after Hurricane Katrina decimated the Gulf Coast, authorities are chipping away at a mountain of fraud cases that, by some estimates, involve thousands of people who bilked the federal government and charities out of hundreds of millions of dollars intended to aid storm victims.

The full scope of Katrina fraud may never be known, but this much is clear: It stretches far beyond the Gulf Coast, like the hurricane evacuees themselves. So far, more than 600 people have been charged in federal cases in 22 states — from Florida to Oregon — and the District of Columbia.

The frauds range in value from a few thousand dollars to more than $700,000. Complaints are still pouring in, and several thousand possible cases are in the pipeline.

"The reason we're seeing such widespread fraud is individuals were evacuated to all 50 states. Katrina was a national phenomenon," says David Dugas, U.S. attorney in Baton Rouge, La., and director of a command center that's part of a special Hurricane Katrina Fraud Task Force.

After Katrina, disaster aid was sent to inmates who applied from prison and to people who claimed property damage and provided addresses of vacant lots or cemeteries, among many abuses documented in Government Accountability Office reports.

While many people filed bogus claims, the growing roster of the accused goes beyond the usual con artists. It includes employees of the Federal Emergency Management Agency and the Army Corps of Engineers, other public officials, business owners, even temporary workers for the Red Cross.

"You can find criminals in every walk of life, and that's what we're seeing here," Dugas says. (AP)

Pet Food Suits Face Legal Hurdles

Owners unlikely to get big reward; states see animals as property

ALBANY, N.Y. | Pet owners are not likely to get much compensation if they individually sue pet food maker Menu Foods over the death of a dog or cat, although they might fare better if they joined forces in a class action suit, legal experts say.

Most state laws consider animals to be only personal property. That means that even for the loss of a faithful family companion, a successful civil lawsuit would not likely produce much of a reward, said Carl Tobias, a law professor at the University of Richmond.

"With animals, all you get is the value of the property," he said. "There are no emotional damages."

In early March, Menu Foods recalled 60 million containers of its "cuts and gravy" style wet pet foods, sold under nearly 100 store labels and major brands. It did so after cats fell sick and died during routine company taste tests. (AP)

Decline in Meth Use Seen

Indicators show drug losing ground in some parts of the country

At one Minneapolis-area high school, the methamphetamine problem got so bad in recent years that staff members sometimes caught students trying to attend class while high.

But this year's been notably different, says Deborah Mosby, a high school drug counselor in Spring Lake Park, Minn.

It's a positive sign in a state that is one of many hard hit by the meth epidemic — and one of several early indications that a drug that's long been a scourge is losing its grip, at least in some communities.

→ In Minnesota's Twin Cities, meth-related emergency room visits dropped from 1,402 in 2005 to 251 in 2006, according to a recent report by the Hazelden Foundation.

→ In Montana, a new report from that state's attorney general noted that meth-related crime fell

The Dodge Flower neighborhood association in Tucson, Ariz., has taken up the fight against meth, holding workshops to help landlords spot criminal activity.

53 percent in 2006, compared with the previous year.

→ In the San Francisco Bay area, meth-related emergency room visits leveled off in 2006, after peaking the previous two years.

Some residents are taking it upon themselves to fight meth, including in the Dodge Flower and Dodge Oak neighborhoods in Tucson, Ariz.

They recently sponsored a workshop for the neighborhoods' many landlords to teach them how to do tenant background checks, legal property inspections and immediate evictions for criminal activity.

"We still have a meth problem; it hasn't cured it," says Barbara Lehmann, president of the Dodge Flower neighborhood association. "But I do feel hopeful." MARTHA IRVINE (AP)

Former Governor Enters Race for GOP Nomination

WASHINGTON | Former Wisconsin Gov. Tommy Thompson on Sunday joined the crowded field of Republicans running for the White House in 2008 and proclaimed that he is the "reliable conservative" in the race.

Thompson

Thompson, 65, has focused his strategy on Iowa, which holds the nation's first caucuses for presidential nominees. He has made weekly visits to the state and sought to make the case that it will take a candidate who can carry the Midwest to win the nomination.

"Things are starting to coalesce, and I feel very, very optimistic about my future," Thompson said Sunday, despite his single-digit polling numbers. (AP)

Dems: Veto Won't End Iraq Withdrawal Push

Republican leader urges lawmakers to quickly finalize bill

WASHINGTON | Senate Democratic leaders said Sunday they will keep pushing for a withdrawal of U.S. forces from Iraq even if President Bush vetoes legislation calling for a pullout.

Meanwhile, the Senate's top Republican leader dismissed as unacceptable any legislation that sets deadlines for a troop withdrawal. He called on Democrats to cut short their Easter recess so lawmakers can quickly send a final version to Bush for a veto.

"This bill is not salvageable," said Sen. Mitch McConnell, R-Ky.

The comments were the latest in a war of words over funding and the future course in Iraq as Congress lurched closer to a veto confrontation with the president.

"The president, as well as his staff, are more than willing to sit down and talk to congressional leaders," White House counselor Dan Bartlett said. "But what we haven't seen from this Democratic leadership is a willingness to drop this very restrictive language that basically substitutes the judgment of politicians ... with the judgment of our commanders on the ground."

The House and Senate passed measures last month that would provide more than $90 billion to military efforts in Iraq and Afghanistan, while setting conditions for an eventual withdrawal of troops. (AP)

Iran Airs New Video of British Crew

2 of the captive sailors discuss location in Gulf where they were seized

TEHRAN, IRAN | Iranian state-run television channels on Sunday aired short video clips of what they said were two of the 15 captured British sailors who pointed to a map of the Persian Gulf and identified where they had been arrested 10 days ago.

The two sailors also said they have been treated well by their captors.

The British sailors and marines were detained by Iranian naval units while patrolling for smugglers as part of a U.N.-mandated force patrolling the Persian Gulf. Iran insists the sailors had trespassed into its waters, but Britain says the team was in Iraqi waters.

Two Farsi-language Islamic Republic of Iran Broadcasting channels showed the two sailors in separate video clips.

The first sailor, who was identified as Capt. Chris Air, said in the video while pointing to a location on the map that two boats left a coali-

Britain's Foreign Office denounced the video, saying it was "completely unacceptable for these pictures to be shown on TV."

ON THE RUN: Somalis flee Mogadishu on Sunday as clashes between Islamic insurgents and government troops continued.

Truce Fails to Stop Somali Violence

String of clashes leave corpses strewn about Mogadishu's streets

MOGADISHU, SOMALIA | A truce brokered by influential clan elders between the government and Islamic insurgents failed Sunday to halt fighting that has left the streets of the capital strewn with corpses.

Uganda, which has about 1,400 troops here as the vanguard of a larger African Union peacekeeping force, said it had lost its first soldier, who was hit by a mortar shell on Saturday. So far, Uganda is the only country to contribute to the peacekeeping force.

Mortar shells continued to rain down hours after Mogadishu's dominant clan, the Hawiye, said it had brokered a truce to stop the fighting between insurgents and the government and its Ethiopian allies.

Masked gunmen carrying rocket-propelled grenade launchers and machine guns were brazenly walking the largely abandoned streets of Mogadishu, one of the world's most violent and gun-infested cities.

Shopkeepers closed their stores and families fled their homes for fear of stray mortars and bullets.

Untold numbers of civilians have been killed and hundreds wounded; corpses were not being taken off the streets or even tallied.

Clan elders have tried to negotiate several cease-fires, but the government and Ethiopian offensive has sparked the heaviest fighting in the Somali capital since the country tumbled into anarchy in the early 1990s. SALAD DUHUL (AP)

Israel Calls For New Arab Talks

PM Olmert looks to discuss peace plans with regional leaders

JERUSALEM | In a dramatic response to an Arab peace initiative, Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Olmert on Sunday invited Arab leaders to a regional peace conference to discuss their ideas for resolving the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Olmert's surprise call came amid a flurry of new peace efforts. U.S. Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice has repeatedly traveled to Israel to try to spur talks, and visiting German leader Angela Merkel, who is currently president of the EU, was here Sunday to back those efforts.

Almost every Israeli prime minister has called for peace talks with moderate Arab leaders over the years, but the only multinational forum was the 1991 Madrid conference, which was followed by secret Israeli-Palestinian contacts and a series of interim peace accords.

At a summit in Saudi Arabia last week, the Arab League renewed a 2002 Saudi peace plan that would recognize Israel in exchange for withdrawal from all captured territories and a just solution for the Palestinian refugees. KARIN LAUB (AP)

McCain: Signs of Progress in Iraq

Senator's visit comes as military reports 6 U.S. soldiers killed

BAGHDAD | After a heavily guarded trip to a Baghdad market, Sen. John McCain insisted Sunday that a U.S.-Iraqi security crackdown in the capital was working and said Americans lacked a "full picture" of the progress. The U.S. military later reported six soldiers were killed in roadside bombings southwest of Baghdad.

Four soldiers were killed responding to the blast that killed the first two, the military said. Britain, meanwhile, announced that one of its soldiers had been shot to death in southern Iraq.

"These and other indicators are reason for cautious, very cautious optimism about the effects of the new strategy," said McCain, who was leading a Republican congressional delegation to Iraq.

McCain, R-Ariz., was combative during the news conference, refusing to respond to a question about whether the U.S. had plans to attack Iran. He also replied testily to a question about remarks he had made last week that it was safe to walk some Baghdad streets. (AP)

Tsunami Hits Solomon Islands After Earthquake

HONIARA, SOLOMON ISLANDS | A massive earthquake struck off the Solomon Islands on Monday, sending a tsunami wave crashing into villages on the country's west coast and leaving at least four people missing, officials said.

The quake, measured variously at magnitudes 7.6 and 8.1, triggered tsunami warnings throughout the South Pacific and as far north as Hawaii, though officials canceled the alert after the danger period passed.

Police in the western town of Gizo reported a wave several yards high crashing ashore, shortly before communications with the two police stations in the town were cut, said Sgt. Godfrey Abiah in the capital, Honiara. (AP)

Mid-Atlantic Primary Day Upstaged

Presidential nominees may be decided before Md., Va. and D.C. vote

ANNAPOLIS, MD. | It seemed like a great idea: Put Maryland, Virginia and Washington, D.C., on the same schedule for next year's presidential primary, scoot the date earlier in the primary season, then sit back and bask in the attention from all the major campaigns.

But as the mid-Atlantic region moves ahead with plans to coordinate a Feb. 12 primary that could award a combined 11 percent of the national delegates needed to win a nomination, it's looking less likely the region will see the candidate visits and advertising dollars lavished on Iowa and New Hampshire.

That's because the mid-Atlantic states weren't the only ones with the idea of sprinting to the front of the presidential primary line.

Virginia lawmakers decided last year to set a Feb. 12 primary, but before Maryland and Washington got a chance to join Virginia, even bigger states moved their primary dates. California, long a primary also-ran, set a Feb. 5 date earlier this month. Several other vote-rich states are looking at that day, including Florida, New York and Texas.

Instead of a mid-Atlantic frenzy in February, the region could find itself alone at the dance after the prom queen already has left.

"My understanding is that once Feb. 5 is over, the nominees might be determined," said Massie Ritsch, spokesman of the Washington-based Center for Responsive Politics.

As Maryland's Senate considered the primary change recently, a legislative aide to Democratic Gov. Martin O'Malley conceded the Feb. 12 primary date won't bring kingmaker status to the region. But Joseph Bryce told senators that states don't have much choice because "everybody's racing to the front of the train."

"We feel that if we create an alliance of states in the region, we can get a chance to see the candidates that are still standing," Bryce said.

Cheering Georgetown students greeted the university's basketball players when they returned to campus on Sunday.

Hoyas Players Get Rousing Greeting

Students turn out to cheer hoops heroes after loss to Ohio State

WASHINGTON | Under a gloomy gray sky on a chilly day, 150 Georgetown University students gathered yesterday outside a campus gym, waiting to greet the Hoyas basketball team, which fell short of its goal of a national championship.

The students were not there to mourn their team's loss in the national semifinals on Saturday, but to celebrate its triumphant season. When the blue team bus pulled up shortly before 2 p.m., the fans broke into enthusiastic applause.

As coach John Thompson III stepped off the bus, the students chanted, "JT III! JT III! JT III!" The cheers grew louder when Roy Hibbert, the 7-foot-2 junior center, deboarded.

The students greeted star junior forward Jeff Green with a chant of, "One more year! One more year!" — making it clear they hope he temporarily eschews the riches of the NBA to return for his senior season.

Thompson, the son of legendary former Hoyas coach John Thompson Jr., briefly addressed the crowd.

"Thanks, everybody," Thompson said. "We couldn't have done it without you."

Thompson led the Hoyas to the team's first Final Four since 1985, when his father was the coach and Patrick Ewing was the star center.

Fenty Cuts Festivities For Holiday

Emancipation Day celebration to be tied to voting rights fight

WASHINGTON | Mayor Adrian M. Fenty has trimmed much of the Emancipation Day festivities — limiting the city's observance of the holiday while adding a voting rights rally and march.

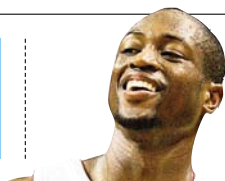

Fenty

In 2005, then-Mayor Anthony A. Williams signed a bill that established April 16 as a legal public holiday in the city, commemorating President Abraham Lincoln's 1862 declaration that freed slaves in the District.

Former council member Vincent B. Orange Sr. said last week that he was disappointed with Fenty's plans to curtail the observance. He said it will now be limited to a half-hour of speeches before the voting-rights rally and speech.

Orange, a Democrat, said that he supports the march — part of a push to get D.C. a vote in the U.S. House of Representatives. But he added that he is concerned that Emancipation Day will lose its significance as a major D.C. event. (AP)

WELCOME BACK TO MIAMI: Dwyane Wade said he will attempt to practice with the Miami Heat on Monday, his first practice since dislocating his shoulder nearly six weeks ago. Wade opted out of surgery to try to help Miami make a run in the playoffs.

Improving Hoyas Could Be a Threat

Georgetown has title in its sites — if Green and Hibbert decide to stay

HOYAS HOOPS | As freshmen, they joined a program on the ropes and took it to the NIT. As sophomores, they made the NCAA tournament Sweet Sixteen. This year, they made it to the Final Four.

For Georgetown's talented junior class, there remains one obvious goal should they all return for their final year of school. It's not hard to picture a scenario in which the Hoyas arrive at next year's Final Four in San Antonio as the favorites to win it all.

"Next year's going to be a great year for us," said Jeff Green, the Big East player of the year, "so I'll be looking forward to it."

Green has always maintained he plans to play four years at Georgetown, although he hedged a little Saturday night by saying it was too early to make a definitive announcement so soon after a tough loss. Green and fellow junior Roy Hibbert would likely be lottery picks in the NBA draft, but the Hoyas' 67-60 loss to Ohio State in the national semifinals showed that they could use another year of college polish.

Point guard Jonathan Wallace will also be a senior, and shooting guard Jessie Sapp will be a junior. Three players who were key contributors as freshmen — DaJuan Summers, Jeremiah Rivers and Vernon Macklin — will be back with a year of big-time experience under their belts, and another top recruiting class is on the way. The new faces will replace the two seniors on this year's roster, both of whom rarely played.

Of course, Green and Hibbert could decide to take the money and run to the NBA. And cash is also an issue with coach John Thompson III, who has a modest contract and will need an extension with a hefty raise to ease the temptation to seek an opening elsewhere. The departure of all three would be the nightmare scenario that would have the Hoyas essentially starting from scratch.

Thompson himself started from scratch three years ago, when he was hired following Georgetown's worst season in 31 years. Thompson has renewed the passion and pride on the Hilltop that was so evident under his Hall of Fame father but went missing under Craig Esherick. Few could have predicted such a quick resurrection.

The Hoyas lost to Ohio State largely because Hibbert couldn't stay out of foul trouble and because Green failed to recognize that he needed to assert himself more — especially when Hibbert was on the bench.

"Jeff Green is an extremely intelligent player," Thompson said. "As I said, I'll live and die with Jeff Green's ability to make decisions."

The Hoyas died with those decisions Saturday night. Next year? Stay tuned. JOSEPH WHITE (AP)

Michael Phelps waves to the crowd after winning the 400-meter Individual medley.

A Week Of Records For Phelps

Swimmer dominates world championships, winning 7 gold medals

SWIMMING | Michael Phelps stands on the deck, glaring at the lane in front of him with a look that would make Mike Tyson cringe. He soaks up the hip-hop on his headphones. Then he unzips his suit, climbs atop the starting blocks, leans over and flaps his arms furiously.

It never changes. Not ever. The routine is the same every time, and who can argue with the results?

On Sunday, Phelps smashed his own world record in the 400-meter individual medley by 2.04 seconds, breaking his fifth world record and becoming the most successful swimmer in world championships history. He won seven gold medals this week, losing only the 400-meter relay, thanks to a disqualification that was no fault of his own.

"That," said U.S. head coach Mark Schubert, "was the greatest performance of all time."

Phelps is poised to be the biggest star at the Beijing Olympics, which is actually the role he claimed at the last games in Athens. He's an athlete of remarkable talent, poise and focus, improving since he fell just short — six golds and two bronzes — of Mark Spitz's iconic record at the 1972 Munich Games. (AP)

Looking to Avenge a Crushing Loss

Buckeyes are different team than the one that lost by 26 to Florida

NCAA TOURNAMENT | No. 1 in the polls to end the season, No. 1 seed in the NCAA South Region, the nation's longest winning streak at 22 games. Gaudy credentials, for sure, but not compelling enough to make Ohio State the favorite in Monday night's national championship game against Florida.

A different set of numbers leaped out when the oddsmakers made Florida a 4 ½-point favorite: 86-60.

As in the score when these same two teams played on Dec. 23.

Florida won that one, of course, and never mind that the game was played at Florida or that it was just the fifth game for Ohio State center Greg Oden, who was coming off wrist surgery.

Oden obviously has matured since then, and the Georgia Dome isn't the O'Connell Center in Gainesville, but it's still fair to ask how the Buckeyes can make up those 26 points. Does Ohio State really have a chance to stop Florida from winning a second straight national title?

The Buckeyes insist they are as confident as they were before their 67-60 semifinal victory over Georgetown on Saturday night.

Still, Ohio State doesn't quibble with the Gators' being the favorites.

"I do feel like we're the underdog," coach Thad Matta said before running his team through their final practice Sunday. "I mean, they are the defending national champions with their top seven players back."

Ohio State has lost only one game since its visit to Gainesville, but that doesn't necessarily mean the Buckeyes have been hoping for a rematch.

"I don't want to say that, you know, I circled Florida and said, 'I want to play Florida again,'" Matta said. "You get beat by 26 points, you really don't want to see that team for a while." CHARLES ODUM (AP)

The Face and Fate of the Nationals

Just 22, Zimmerman is the center of D.C.'s up-and-coming squad

NATIONALS | When Ryan Zimmerman was drafted by the Washington Nationals in June 2005, general manager Jim Bowden threw around names like Brooks Robinson and Scott Rolen while describing the kid's talent.

Not much pressure there, right?

Fast-forward to 2007 as the Nationals get ready to kick off their campaign against the Marlins, and not only is Zimmerman already an established big league third baseman, but he's also the guy Bowden points to for comparisons.

One example: Setting out to praise Austin Kearns when the right fielder signed a contract extension, Bowden said, "He's a complete player, like young Ryan Zimmerman. They know how to play the game."

Another: Talking this offseason about the danger of hurrying young pitchers to the majors, Bowden said, Ryan Zimmerman celebrates after hitting a game-winning home run last season.

"There's certain guys that can handle being rushed. You can rush a Zimmerman to the big leagues."

As the Nationals rebuild after three consecutive last-place finishes in the NL East, there's no doubt about who's at the center of the project.

"Ryan's a very important part of this organization for the long term," Bowden said. "He's the face of the organization, really."

That's clear to anyone who drove or walked down East Capitol Street on the way to RFK Stadium for Washington's exhibition finale Saturday, a 6-3 loss to the Baltimore Orioles. Twenty-five players will be on the roster Monday when the Nationals start the regular season, but the only pictures on both sides of a large sign in the grassy area near the ballpark are of Zimmerman.

"If you play sports, and you don't want to be that guy, you're in the wrong place," said Zimmerman, who's from Virginia Beach, Va. "I kind of walked into the right spot, being from close to here and kind of being a little bit younger and a little bit marketable. I just got lucky, and people kind of put it on me. I'll have fun with it."

All of 22, and less than two years removed from college baseball at Virginia, he's already managed to draw respect from older, more experienced players.

"This guy is special, man. You can just feel it as his teammate," 10-year veteran Robert Fick said.

A steady demeanor helps. So does his make-all-the-right-plays approach. His stats, too.

"A lot of people tend to forget how old he is because of the way he acts. He acts like he's been around for 10 years," manager Manny Acta said. He has earned people's respect by the way he acts. Also, it's a lot easier to gain respect and become a leader when you can drive in 100 runs and play good defense."

Wiz Lose Butler In Win Over Bucks

Forward could miss the rest of the season after fracturing hand

WIZARDS | Gilbert Arenas scored 19 points and Caron Butler added 19 points before fracturing his right hand early in the second half of the Washington Wizards' 121-107 victory over the Milwaukee Bucks on Sunday.

Darius Songaila came in for Butler, who could miss the playoffs.

"Second round, third round, a possibility," Butler said after the game. "But right now, I probably won't have a jersey on until next year."

Butler said the accident happened when he went up to challenge a shot by Ruben Patterson and his right hand hit the backboard. He was playing in his third game back since missing six with a left knee contusion.

"My hand caught under the rim, and it popped out of place," Butler said.

Jarvis Hayes scored 17 points including two 3-pointers and a basket during a 10-1 run midway through the fourth that put Washington in control.

Washington's victory, coupled with Miami's loss to Detroit earlier Sunday, helped the Wizards regain first place in the Southeast Division. Washington fell a half-game out of first place Friday when they lost to Toronto and the Heat defeated Minnesota. (AP)

The O's Rare Road Opener

Team usually starts at home, but goes to Minneapolis this time

ORIOLES | Johan Santana climbed over the left-field wall and into the empty seats, challenging a couple of his Minnesota Twins teammates to go deep during batting practice on Sunday.

The AL's reigning Cy Young Award winner looked as relaxed as ever, and who was surprised by that? At the Metrodome, where he'll take the mound on Monday night for Minnesota's opener against the Baltimore Orioles, Santana has found an unparalleled level of comfort — and dominance.

Though he lost a 3-2 decision here to the Oakland Athletics last October in the first round of the playoffs, Santana is 16-0 in his last 23 regular-season starts at home since Aug. 1, 2005. The Twins have won every time. Monday's game sold out last week.

start for Baltimore on opening day for the first time.

"He's been great. I don't know how many times I can say how good he's been this spring," manager Sam Perlozzo said. "I think he's going to take it into the season. I feel totally comfortable that he's going to have another good year, maybe a great year." (AP)

TV's New Calling

The cellular industry is intent on beaming shows to your phone

PORTABLE TECH | Try shopping for a "Watchman" on Sony's Web site, and all you'll find is music. Though the company kept making the handheld TV for two decades, it never caught on like the Walkman, or, more recently, the iPod.

Yet around the same time that Sony Corp. was halting Watchman production earlier this decade, the cellular industry grew bent on bringing live television to cell phones, unimpressed by the market's apparent rejection of watching TV on a 2- or 3-inch screen.

Well, cell TV is here now. And since it's not free like traditional broadcast television, the wireless industry will soon find out whether people want their squint TV.

In early March, Verizon Wireless introduced an eight-channel service that broadcasts programming, much of it identical to that being shown on regular TV, including shows from CBS, Comedy Central, ESPN, Fox and NBC. The service, delivered over an $800 million network being built by Qualcomm Inc. and slated to expand to 20 channels, will also be offered later this year by AT&T Inc.'s Cingular Wireless under a recent deal.

Outside the United States, 400,000 people in Italy are using a cell TV service launched less than a year ago by the mobile carrier 3. Those customers are paying as much as 29.99 euros ($40) extra per month to get TV on the go.

Such a swift customer embrace would likely thrill Verizon, which is charging $15 to $25 a month for V Cast Mobile TV. The company won't say how many customers have signed up for the TV service since its launch in roughly 20 markets.

Cell tower operator Crown Castle

International Corp. is creating its own trial network called Modeo. The venture says it will launch the service in 30 major markets.

Modeo President Michael Ramke said market research indicates that about half of consumers do, indeed, want a phone that does everything.

But, he stresses, "The other half want their phones to be very simple and cheap and just work as a phone."

BRUCE MEYERSON (AP)

Marketing, Now in 3-D

DIGITAL LIFE | Companies are flocking to market themselves in virtual worlds, game-like and usually 3-D online universes, but the future of this fledgling industry is far from clear.

"We're pretty much where the Internet was in the mid-'90s," said Steve Prentice, a vice president at technology research group Gartner Inc., echoing a view held by other participants last week at the Virtual Worlds conference in New York City.

MTV executives touted their TV show spinoffs "Virtual Laguna Beach" and "Virtual Hills," which have attracted 600,000 registered users since they were launched six months ago. Almost like the real California, these 3-D online spaces have perfect weather, but their users are all represented by attractive, young online embodiments.

These avatars can interact with each other via text chats and commerce, providing a social element that virtual-world pioneers see as more realistic and engaging than chat rooms and MySpace pages.

As an example of the branding opportunities, Matt Bostwick, senior vice president of franchise development at MTV Music Group, said MTV has sold more than 11,402 virtual cans of Pepsi. The buyers cannot drink them, since they exist only on the screen, but they act as a form of decoration for their avatars. PETER SVENSSON (AP)

SPEED KILLS: Kurt Russell stars in "Death Proof," Quentin Tarantino's contribution to the "Grindhouse" double feature.

Exploiting Fun

'Grindhouse' goes for the goons, guns and girls with gusto

SLASHERS | Quentin Tarantino and his friend and fellow filmmaker Robert Rodriguez have created a tribute to exploitation movies — those low-budget, gritty films of the '60s and '70s that featured guns, goons and gorgeous women. Opening Friday, the aptly titled "Grindhouse" is an unprecedented project from the frequent collaborators ("From Dusk Till Dawn," "Four Rooms," "Sin City"), encompasses two original movies paired up in a double feature.

Tarantino's film, "Death Proof," is an action thriller involving a psychotic serial killer's roving, revving death machine. Kurt Russell stars as Stuntman Mike, who has a thing for speed — and hurting beautiful women. Rosario Dawson, Sydney Tamiia Poitier, Vanessa Ferlito, Jordan Ladd, Tracie Thoms and Mary Elizabeth Winstead co-star. Rose McGowan, who has a starring role in Rodriguez's "Planet Terror," which precedes Tarantino's chase movie, also has a cameo as a doomed barfly in "Death Proof."

Tarantino says "Grindhouse" will be a fun reminder for those old enough to remember cheesy drive-in or second-run movies. And he hopes it will draw a new audience to the subgenre. "To those younger people who have never had this experience before, it makes us look even more original than we really are," the filmmaker said with a hearty laugh.

"Death Proof" makes reference to classic chase movies such as "Gone with the Wind," "Vanishing Point" and "Dirty Mary Crazy Larry," a gritty love story starring Peter Fonda. Slasher film influences include "Black Christmas" and the Italian horror film "The House on the Edge of the Park." "Death Proof" also contains several Tarantino trademarks: people who work in the entertainment industry, characters that spend much of their time discussing popular culture, and beautiful, self-reliant women.

Tarantino said he and Rodriguez intentionally made their films different from one another's. Rodriguez pays homage to zombie movies while Tarantino takes on slasher and car chase movies. "In almost every category of the two films, we didn't want any sameness going on," said Tarantino. "If my film had the same distressed look as Robert's, it would look like we had just pushed a button. [Each film] had to exist in a different kind of way, with unique tone and pacing."

Tarantino and Rodriguez met in the early 1990s at the Toronto International Film Festival when they were up-and-coming young filmmakers. Tarantino was promoting "Reservoir Dogs" and Rodriguez was promoting "El Mariachi." They discovered a shared passion for film and filmmaking. "When you're growing up, you feel like you're the only person who likes to do these kinds of things, and then you meet someone like Quentin, who is like-minded," said Rodriguez, a Texas native.

"I wish I'd known him in elementary school," said the Tennessee-born Tarantino. ANGELA DAWSON (ENTERTAINMENT NEWS WIRE)

GIANT SQUID Oceanic Rock

Seafaring themes seem to be popular among the metal set, but Giant Squid is more Mogwai than Mastodon (and vocalist-guitarist Aaron Gregory often recalls the manic wail of Serj Tankian from System of a Down). The quartet's droney, sludge-metal songs on "Metridium Fields" are epic and proggy but also seductively psychedelic.

JUDITH STONE Colors of Apartheid

2 Born in 1955 to a pro-apartheid Afrikaner couple, Sandra Laing was registered and raised as a white child. But the dark-skinned and frizzy-haired Laing's racial classification was changed three times. Journalist Stone pieces together Laing's strange tale in "When She Was White: The True Story of a Family Divided by Race in South Africa."

SHAKESPEARE

Revenge: Not So Sweet

or the first time in its history, the Shakespeare Theatre Company will stage "Titus Andronicus," written at the beginning of Shakespeare's career and filled with buckets of bloodshed. When the Roman General Titus returns after defeating the Goths, he sacrifices one of their princes as revenge for the deaths of his sons. But as Confucius said, "Before you embark on a journey of revenge, dig two graves." Director Gale Edwards helms this meditation on the cycle of violence at the Lansburgh Theatre. If you prefer your Shakespeare on the screen rather than on the stage, well, you might be a heathen. But the acclaimed 1999 film "Titus" — starring Anthony Hopkins, Jessica Lange and Jonathan Rhys Meyers — plays throughout the month at AFI Lansburgh Theatre, 4507th St. NW; April 3-May 20, $19-$76.25; 202-547-1122. (Archives-Navy Memorial) | AFI Silver Theatre, 8633 Colesville Rd., Silver Spring; April 1-30, $9.25; 301-495-6700. (Silver Spring)

"SINGING SHAKESPEARE" is a cabaret featuring songs from the American musical theater that are based on Shakespeare's works, including selections from "West Side Story," "The Boys From Syracuse" and "Two Gentlemen of Verona." Matthew Gardiner will direct the event for the Signature Theatre. The Ark Theatre, 2800 S. Stafford St., Arlington; April 4-7, $27; 703-820-9771.

THE SHAKESPEARE IN WASHINGTON FESTIVAL CONTINUES THROUGH JUNE. SEE SHAKESPEARE IN WASHINGTON.ORG FOR A COMPLETE SCHEDULE.

FAITH & COURAGE: Sinead O'Connor is still unretired from the music biz — so much so that her forthcoming album, "Theology," is a double CD. The set is due June 26, and the first CD is an acoustic affair produced in Ireland; the second CD was recorded in London with a full band and string section, as well as reggae bassist Robbie Shakespeare.

Swords vs. Shooters

'God of War II' sends off the PlayStation 2 with a fab swan song

VIDEO GAMES | Do kids really imitate the violence they see in video games? If you believe they do, then answer this: Why haven't we seen a huge surge in sword-related crimes over the last few decades?

I'd wager that far more games involve swordplay than gunplay. In role-playing games, for example, the sword is typically the default weapon; guns are usually reserved for weaker support characters. But in action games, too, from "The Legend of Zelda" to "Prince of Persia," you're more likely to attack someone with a pointy object than with a hail of bullets. Heck, even in the "Star Wars" universe, light sabers — really just fluorescent swords — far outnumber projectile weapons.

Sure, there are plenty of first-person shooters out there for cowards who would rather take out the enemy from a distance. But nothing matches the visceral kick of mano-a-mano, blade-to-blade combat.

And "God of War II" for the PlayStation 2 might be the best sword game yet.

When we last saw Kratos, the tattooed, muscle-bound hero of "God of War," he had defeated the Greek deity Ares and assumed his throne on Mount Olympus. But the rest of the gods aren't too happy with Kratos' interference with human events, so he's booted back to Earth. Armed with Athena's Blades, a nifty pair of daggers that he can whip at enemies, the dyspeptic hero sets out on a new mission of vengeance.

DAVID AND GOLIATH? Kratos battles the Colossus of Rhodes in "God of War II."

Everything that gamers loved about the original "God of War" — the smooth combat, the clever puzzles, the extreme ultraviolet — is bigger and badder in the sequel. And fans who were dazzled by the original's climactic fight against the massive Ares will be delighted. Right from the start, "God of War II" heaves you into a battle against the Colossus of Rhodes, and the bosses only get more colossal from there.

"God of War" surprised a lot of people with its compulsive gameplay and cinematic flair, but "God of War II" surpasses it in every way. It's a superb send-off to the reliable old PS2.

SCARE TACTICS: Fearnet, which offers horror movies on demand and online, has partnered with “Spider-Man” director Sam Raimi for its first two original productions. “Devil’s Trade” features cursed teens and “30 Days of Night” will be a prequel to same-named vampire film that opens in October.

Flawless to a Fault

The new 'Bachelor' will make you feel totally inadequate

WHY? | “The Bachelor” (9:45 p.m., ABC) returns for what seems like the 400th season. And this season’s Prince Charming seems almost too good to be true.

Andy Baldwin grew up on a Pennsylvania farm to a family of modest means. As a kid, he worked three jobs and earned the paperboy-of-the-year citation. He became a nationally known swimmer, earned scholarships to Duke, where he excelled, then joined the Navy and trained to be a Navy Seal. He then he went to medical school, where he excelled. He recently received an award for his work with orphans. And in his spare time, he participates in Ironman triathlons.

And as if to polish his Mr. Perfect credentials, he drives off to his bachelor mansion in a car that resembles the DeLorean in “Back to the Future.” These women aren’t going to date a “Bachelor”; they’re going out with Batman.

You have to wonder how a fellow this brave, clean and reverent managed to avoid Cupid's arrows all these years.

And why someone who appears to be such a straight shooter now wants to dip his Ironman toe in the fetid waters of reality television.

CULT OF SPIRITUAL PERSONALITY
The documentary "Sister Aimee" on AMERICAN EXPERIENCE (9 p.m., PBS) profiles Aimee Semple McPherson, a trailblazing preacher who married the religious fervor of the revival tent with the fledgling mediums of radio, motion pictures and public relations. Critics blasted her for creating a cult of personality. Many praised her for her efforts on behalf of the poor and for integrating her services decades before the civil rights movement. "Sister Aimee" does a good

Special Report solves the
“My home isn’t selling” problem

WASHINGTON METRO — A “Special Report” explodes what its author exposes as “The myth of slow home sales.” In fact, the Report explains, in clear and plain English, how a home owner who wants to sell can not only count on a sale within 120 days but can be guaranteed that the sale will occur.

The Report proves its accuracy by quoting specific local instances in which the technique it describes has sold homes time after time, quickly, efficiently, and at a favorable price.

The author of the report, noted realtor Frank Sanya, has made numerous appearances on both television and radio.

Mr. Sanya states that the Report represents the compendium of his many years of real estate experience and can be of substantial value to homeowners, especially those whose homes have been on the market unsold for a considerable period of time. The author emphasizes that although he does not accept every listing, by following the Report’s procedures he accomplishes a sale in every instance in which he is the broker of record.

The secret, says the Report, is a combination of traits and procedures that consistently result in a successful sale. For a free copy of the Report, go to a private but available Web site — www.WantItSoldNow.com.

Companies introduce speedier editions of popular board games

Michelle Hastings admits she's sometimes cheated to get through a game of Candy Land with her 5-year-old daughter, Campbell. The board game can take just too long, she said. Disney Monopoly is another big offender.

"A game like that — it could literally take you days," said Hastings, of Holliston, Mass. "A lot of times, you don't play games, because they take so long."

Board game makers are heeding pleas of parents like Hastings and introducing games tailored to busy lives and shorter attention spans that take only about 20 minutes to play.

Hasbro Inc., the nation's largest game company, is releasing a streamlined version of The Game of Life that uses a Visa card rather than cash and a "LifePod" that electronically keeps track of points — which can keep the game moving. The Pawtucket, R.I.-based company is also introducing three "Express" versions of classic board games this year: Monopoly Express, Scrabble Express and Sorry Express.

"A lot of people like playing games, but they want resolution," said Jim Silver, editor in chief of Toy Wishes magazine. "And that's why you see some of these quicker games coming out."

Fast games are nothing new: think the classic card game Uno or the timed word-building game Boggle. But analysts say game makers are more aggressively concentrating on fast games and even retooling classic games so they don't take so long.

The Game of Life: Twists & Turns Edition lets players determine ahead of time how long they want to game to last. Monopoly is getting an optional "speed die," rolled in addition to the regular two dice. Certain rolls will move the player to the next available property, moving the game along.

While a Monopoly game can drag on as players duke it out to avoid bankruptcy, Monopoly Express moves quickly, and players decide on a winning money value ahead of time so they can play a long or short game.

"It's analogous to a kid picking up his Game Boy for 10 minutes," said Chris Byrne, an independent toy consultant based in New York. "Yet it involves the whole family."

McGowan said board games are a backbone of Hasbro, representing about 25 percent to 30 percent of the company's total sales. But its customers' interests are evolving: "When they're 10, they're more likely to be texting each other on cell phones," he said. "It's extremely important for Hasbro to do whatever they can to hold onto and grow their games business."

There's also a trend toward DVD games, which can be speedier and more interactive than traditional board games. Hasbro has released DVD versions of Candy Land, which has players put color blocks around the living room as a real-world game board; Clue — which has butler and inspector characters who walk players through the game with a narrative storyline; and Twister, which gets players up and moving with a dance party mode and instructional mode.

"Games are becoming, in a lot of respects, entertainment," Silver said. MICHELLE R. SMITH (AP)

Champion Dogs

Now animal-friendly, hog-baying is going strong in the South

Trey Skains, 9, sat in the dirt with Steele, scratching the dog's belly and bragging about the spotted pooch with bright blue eyes.

"He's a pretty dang good dog," Trey said. "He's won me a lot of trophies."

Skains and Steele are players in hog baying, in which dogs go into a ring to round up a wild hog. At Uncle Earl's 13th Annual Hog Dog Trials last week, they got the chance to show their stuff in a competition billed as both a Southern and a family tradition.

"This isn't a sport; it's our heritage," said Clem O'Bryan, 70, a founder of the event. "This is families together sharing something we've been doing for generations."

In an era of animal rights activism, O'Bryan is quick to point out that hog-baying differs from hog-catching.

In hog-catching, dogs, usually pit bulls, are sent into a pen and timed for how quickly they can pin a hog. Once they bite, the dogs usually must be pried from the hogs with a specially designed bar. The practice — sometimes called hog-baiting — outraged animal lovers and sparked prohibitions across the South.

“This is families together sharing something we’ve been doing for generations.”

CLEM O'BRYAN, EVENT CO-FOUNDER

In hog-baying, the goal is for a dog to corner a boar in two to four minutes. The dogs sometimes bite, but it counts against them in scoring. Louisiana bans hog-catching, but permits the Uncle Earl's event.

The Louisiana Society for the

In hog-baying, the goal is for a dog to corner a running boar in two to four minutes.

Prevention of Cruelty to Animals worked on the law that exempted Uncle Earl's, said spokeswoman Gloria Dauphin. The society has never received a complaint about the event, Dauphin said.

And all usually ends well for the hogs, which are released after the event.

Skains and Steele did well at Uncle Earl's this year, winning second place in two events. Twin sister Rebecca Skains and her dog, Pongo, took fourth place in an event.

The siblings and their father, Reg Skains, were among the thousands of people who jammed Winnfield, population about 5,400, for five days of watching everything from puppies to old dogs chase wild hogs.

"It's the biggest event in Winn Parish," said Lawrence White, president of the Winnfield Chamber of Commerce. "I would guess five to six thousand people come to the event over the course of the week. And we probably have upward of a thousand who actually spend two or three nights here."

The event was named for Earl K. Long — "Uncle Earl" — who was born in Winnfield in 1895. Long, brother of Gov. Huey P. Long, was one of Louisiana's most colorful politicians. He was governor three times between 1939 and 1960 and was an avid hog hunter.

Around the Winn Parish Fair Grounds, youngsters fed and watered hundreds of dogs tied up outside recreational vehicles, listened to men discussing the merits of the dogs and sought advice about training puppies.

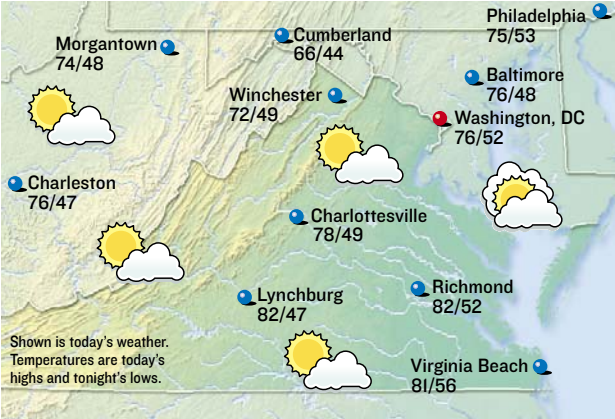

For the dogs — which weigh 45 to 75 pounds — dominating a 200-pound hog, many with sharp tusks, requires instinct, athleticism and finesse.

"You got to go through a lot of dogs to get a really champion one," said Levi Jones, 10, who won the Youth Bay with his dog, Blue.

← The floppy's last, longest, gasp was the 3 1/2" disk. Think Geek also hawks notepads made with 5 1/4" and even 8" diskettes — which no one born after 1970 can even remember. ($7 to $20, thinkgeek.com)

↑ Stash office detritus in a sweetly geeky receptacle made from colorful 3 1/2-inchers. This vendor didn't stop with floppies — check out the hard-drive clocks, too. ($5, geekgearstore.com)

↑ These wee, wood-mounted depictions of obsolete tech (Apple Newtons, Atari joysticks) are by turns plaintive and nostalgic. Yes, the '80s and '90s were simpler times. But magnets would eat your portable media. ($40, pixelgirlshop.com)

← The user group will be green as a 1975 CRT with envy. Pack this vinyl bag, encased in 12 floppies, with USB keys, CompactFlash cards and DVD+Rs, all of which will be clogging landfills by 2015. Fear not, snags: The metal doors are glued down. ($55, fractalspin.com)

Magnetic Media

You'll be drawn to diskettes

Children of the '80s marvel that early home computers stored data on audio cassettes. Kids of the '00s will never believe we kept precious documents on bits of plastic film. First, computers stopped coming with floppy drives. Now, it's a challenge to even buy diskettes — except for those reborn as purses, notepads and other novelties. HOLLY J. MORRIS (EXPRESS)

← Two outmoded technologies converge in Acorn Studios' notebooks: disks and paper. Enjoy writing with pens on wood pulp while you still can, as the 5 1/4" floppy covers spur you to contemplate the evanescence of data. ($10, acornstudios.ca)

Skin Care

Hardcore Softness

First off, SKIN SO SOFT FUSIONS BODY WASH ($6.50 each, avon.com) does not contain the magic bug repellent found in other members of the SSS family. In fact, they'll probably attract bugs — Light & Lush smells like Sweet Tarts, while Soft & Sensual and Renew & Refresh are generic florals. The gimmick: Half of each tube is a creamy soap, half an exfoliant. The bright-colored, squishy grains in the latter are quite novel. It's like scrubbing with neon-hued streusel. H.J.M.

Grooming

Lab Series for Doofs

Lab Series for Men's new salves for bad skin confounded our guinea pig's powers of description, which begin and end at "It smelled good." We eventually determined that he liked the OIL CONTROL TOWELETTES ($15, labseries.com), astringent wipes that smell of sherry and leave skin refreshed. The foamy, mint-scented OIL CONTROL FACE WASH ($20) banished grease without dryness. But the salicylic acid-based ANTI-ACNE GEL ($15) was so strong-smelling (again, sherry), our boy was light-headed. The DAILY HYDRATOR ($27), a moisturizer, baffled him, as he tried to wash with it. "It's like putting toothpaste on my face," he whined. H.J.M.

Right 'Tones,' Wrong Decade

Field Music's "Tones of Town" CD is filled with sharp songs that conjure XTC, the Jam and other '80s mod-pop bands. But David Brewis, co-songwriter for the U.K. trio, said it's purely coincidence. He talked to Express about who really influenced his music. | ONLINE NOW

COMMENTER MH, responding (incorrectly, it turns out) to the weekend's poll center question: "Who will win the men's NCAA tournament?"

“Well, that and the fact that Tangherlini looks great with a beard. Not everyone could pull off a 'Tangherlini,' but I wish everyone would try."

COMMENTER JIMBO, responding to a post about a Metro-goer calling a friend's beard a "Tangherlini" — referring to D.C. city administrator Dan Tangherlini's facial hair.

Live Online

What's on TV?

Post TV columnist LISA DE MORAES was online Friday to talk about Sanjaya, "The Shield" and the young male demographic.

Wouldn't this season of "American Idol" be boring without Sanjaya? What would we talk about? And aren't the anti-Sanjayanistas going a bit overboard in proclaiming his destructive influence? Pookie, there is no such thing as "overboard" when you're talking about "American Idol." And, yes, it's a far, far better season of "Idol" because of Sanjaya. We would not have much to talk about otherwise. Particularly once Chris Sligh stopped nicking Simon Cowell for having worked on "Teletubbies" songs. I see he gave an interview in which he said he stopped because after he did that he got death threats on his blog and became frightened. OK, I stand corrected — issuing death threats over "Idol" is going a bit overboard.

"The Shield" returns Tuesday (yes! yes!). I know the creators don't plan for it to last much longer, but, still, killing off one of the most popular characters in one of the few truly shocking things I ever have seen on TV was a risky move. Do you think it will pay off in terms of keeping fans hooked through the final hours?

It's not a risky move; it's Drama Series Ratings Booster Move No. 3. Everyone's doing it.

Any thoughts on "Andy Barker, P.I."? I've caught parts of two episodes and found myself actually guffawing frequently.

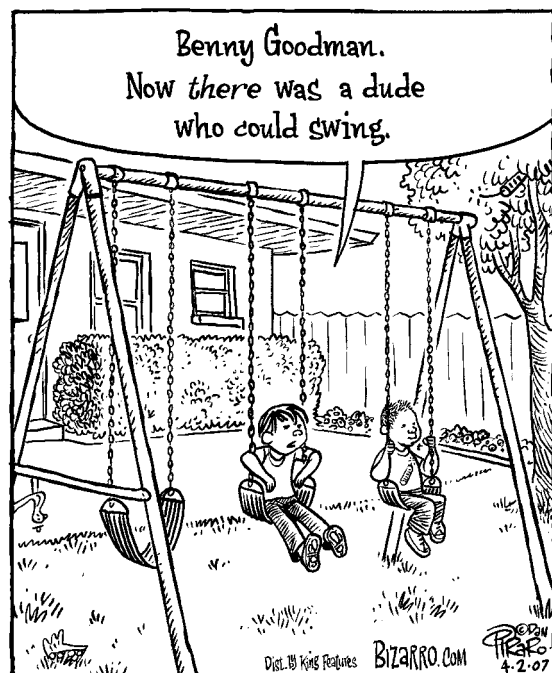

Sadly, it's not doing well — though I haven't checked its numbers in the young male trustfunders demographic group. Hopefully, it's doing great with them, in which case it will probably be back.

Studying the Antidepressant Effects of Sleep Deprivation

Sleep deprivation has rapid & brief antidepressant effects in some depressed people. NIMH is exploring how a drug that mimics the effects of sleep deprivation in the brain, may also bring about a rapid antidepressant response in people who are depressed. Understanding how this works may help us understand depression and design better antidepressants. Study includes multiple overnight stays & free sleep evaluations to rule out sleep disorders. NIMH is seeking people ages 18-60 with depression who:

- Are free of other serious medical conditions
- Do not have any sleep disorders

THE BRAINS BEHIND THE BRAWN

The steel industry utilizes more than $4 billion in advanced control systems and high-tech services each year.

Innovation, technology and a highly skilled workforce have transformed America's steel industry into one of the world's most competitive, sustainable and environmentally progressive. Computer software and precision automation are the tools of this modern industry, tripling steel productivity since the early 1980s and adding $350 billion annually to the American economy.
